

Box Truck Financing

A How-To Guide by Truck Lenders USA

www.trucklendersusa.com/box-truck-financing

877-233-1475

What is a box truck?

Box trucks get their name from the shape of their cargo area. They can haul a variety of types of payload, so they are very useful to any type of company that needs to move or deliver items.

A box truck can be a delivery truck, cube van, cube truck, straight truck, or cargo truck.

How can I purchase a box truck?

Box trucks can be purchased or leased, both new and used.

The first step in financing a box truck is to determine what type the business needs.

What type of box truck do we need?

Some common box truck manufacturers include Ford, Dodge, Chevrolet/GMC, Isuzu, Mitsubishi Fuso and UD/Nissan Diesel.

The range of manufacturers and their accompanying model options give businesses a huge selection when it comes to choosing between light and heavy duty, gas or diesel, and fuel efficient models, not to mention all of the options when it comes to safety and comfort features.

What determines my rates?

Generally the rates, monthly payments, and financing terms will be largely based on business history and creditworthiness.

The longer the business has been in existence and the better the credit score, the more likely the business is to secure a lower rate, lower monthly payment, and lower down payment.

Can I negotiate terms?

Yes!

We will always work with our customers to provide you the optimal refunds, incentives, and end of lease terms you are eligible for.

How to start the application process

After you determine what type of box truck fits your business, contact Truck Lenders USA to fill out their easy application and discuss approval guidelines.

Call us at 877-233-1475 or visit www.trucklendersusa.com/box-truck-financing